

INFO SHEET

To Seek a Newer World

A neo-western black comedy political thriller

LOGLINE

In the distant future, an investigative journalist and a Native state representative fight to stop a corrupt mayor in Montana from suppressing Native American votes, uncovering a political machine too bizarre.

SYNOPSIS

In 2033 Montana, investigative journalist Waylon Warner joins forces with Native state representative Callen Belleau to uncover a corrupt plot by Forsyth mayor Barry Lord to suppress Native votes, curry favor with state and national leaders, and pave his way to a higher office.

As they dig deeper, they face smear campaigns, online disinformation, and an increasingly absurd public confrontation that blurs the line between political theater and reality.

PRODUCTION DESIGN

Weathered Americana. Natural surroundings of small western towns, using Northwestern Colorado as a stand-in for Southeastern Montana. Natural lighting is prioritized. Embracing the neo-western aesthetic and modern media language, long takes for realism, surreal beats that disrupt it, and editing inspired by the digital age.

PRODUCTION SCHEDULE

Principal Photography: May – August 2026

FUNDING NEEDS

Writer and director Broden Mock will personally finance most of the film; however, additional support is still needed.

All contributors will be credited in the film's end credits.

Donations are being collected via GoFundMe.
